CERTIFICATION & AUTHORIZATION

Broker certifies and attests that it has no affiliation, as that term ("affiliate") is defined in Regulation Z (12 CFR 1026.32(b)(5)), with the third-party processing company listed above. Furthermore, Broker attests that the third-party processor working is not an employee of Broker. Broker understands that the third-party processing company will provide an invoice for their services on their letterhead specific to any transaction to Broker, and Broker will deliver a copy to Arc Home. Broker acknowledges and understands that Arc Home imposes certain limitations on compensation a third-party processor may charge on a given transaction.

IMPORTANT INSTRUCTIONS**

- As the party seeking approval to use a 3rd Party Processor ("TPP"), the Broker is responsible for working with the TPP to obtain information necessary to enable Arc to vet the TPP from a licensing perspective and validate the bona fide nature of the services to be rendered.
- The following instructions should help the Broker and TPP provide adequate information to enable Arc Home to efficiently review the TPP's qualifications and licensure and, as appropriate, approve the TPP consistent with the requirements of Arc Home's Third-Party Processing Fee Policy. Failure to adhere to these instructions and provide complete information may delay or result in the declination of the requested TPP.

The TPP to be used by the Broker will typically conduct business in one of two ways:
(1) A licensed third-party processing company that employs individual processors (which are paid W-2 reported compensation) The processing company may be formed as either a corporation, limited liability company or other form of legal entity depending on applicable law.		(2) As an individually licensed contract loan processor. The contract loan processor who may operate as either a sole proprietor or may have formed a legal entity (which is not a licensed third-party processing company in NMLS) but through which the contract processor may nominally conduct business
Example: John Doe is an employee by ABC Processing LLC ("ABC"), paid a wage by ABC and receives an IRS Form W-2 at year end from ABC. John Doe is not licensed in NMLS, but ABC is licensed in NMLS.		Example: John Doe is a licensed processor in NMLS and formed a company known as 123 Processing LLC, which is not licensed in NMLS. -Or- John Doe is a licensed processor in NMLS and does business under the name trade name "123 Processing" which is fictitious and not a duly formed legal entity. -Or- John Doe is a licensed processor in NMLS and conducts business individually in his own name

Depending on the legal and licensing status of the TPP based on the above criteria, please follow the corresponding instructions in completing the questionnaire:
